words, thoughtul provision, the sacretic essence of the word "home," which even poverty and ignorance may gather to themselves and hold in linked arms with their own tenacity.

The biscuits are baked and the polished stove door stands sjar; the floor boards are scarcely dry from scouring, and the lamp-chimney glistens; the first aroma of of the tex is just rising from the new tin pot on the stove. Two children play with the cat on the floor, and a third sleeps in a settee-like cradle. The woman stands with her face close pressed against the upper pane in the lower sash, and a little girl stands with hers against a lower pane. The attitudes of mother and child are precisely similar, and both are silent. How early, to be sure, they learn the trick of anxious watching!

MORGANTOWN, March 22, 1878.

Two or three old black tree-roots and a slab from the mill above were toesed about in the brown, swollen waters. It was growing dusk, but objects could be distinctly discerned. A human figure tossed about and swept ahead of those black roots would be a terrible object; not more terrible, Reid thought, than the same figure endued with life, pacing the shore, and crying in its torture to the Omnipotent.

The exercises were opened with a piece of instrumental music by Miss Susie Moore, the organist for the occasion.

Mr. Spencer Wade, of the junior class, gave as the first performance an oration on the subject of "Prison Reform." The object of the speaker was to show the disastrous results to both the mind and body of convicts by the present system of punishment in prisons, and to insist that there should be a "prison reform." He urged that the good work begun by John Howard be carried on until our prisons should be instruments to raise debased the eastern mountains, glimmered over the waters and whitened all the stones; but no stone so white as the face lying among them with its look of aweet conent. The redoing of the mitial tissue from the heart's wall would be but an instant's work; but that instant would be long enough to hold the thought that God has his own times and ways, and that Reid's life might at the last foot up as heavily as if spent in pleading cases at the Sus-sex bar. should be instruments to raise debase men from their fallen condition rather sex bar.

—Manny Downey's Pies.

Bret Harte in Scribner for April.

The pies and cakes made by the old woman were, I think, remarkable rather for their inducing the same loyal and generous spirit than for their intrinsic scellence, and it may be said appealed more strongly to the nobler aspirations of humanity than its vulgar appetite. Howbeit everybody ate Mammy Downey's pies, and thought of his childhood. "Take em, dear boys," the old lady would asy, "it does me good to see you eat 'en; reminds me kinder of my poor Sammy, that of he'd lived, would hev been ex strong and big ex you be, but was taken down with lung fever at Sweetwater. I kin see him yet; that's forty years ago, dear! comin' out o' the lot to the cake house, and smilin' such a beautiful smile, like yours, dear boy, as I handed him a mince or a lemming-turnover. Dear, dear, how I do run oul and those days is past! but the hotel-keeper, actuated by a low jeal-ousy, had suggested that she "seemed to live of them," but as that person tried to demonstrate the truth of her statement by reference to the cost of the raw material used by the old lady, it was considered by the camp as too practical and economical for concideration. "Besides," added Oy Perkins, "ef old Mammy wants to turn an honeat penny in her old sig, let her do it. How would you like your old monther to make pies on grub wages, chird. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alter-native with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a pain-ful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is some-times an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be bene ficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it.
